Flexible. Adaptable. Fluid.

The open plan is in a constant state of change. Whether designing for free-address mobility or assigned benching, open collaboration or private, heads-down work, Flux Open Plan brings order to the unrest.

Designed by David Allan Pessa, Flux Open Plan is an extension of the Flux casegood line that adapts to the way you work with an extensive offering of height adjustability, smart storage, and modern materials.

Create straight rows of benching or a more dynamic layout with 120° tables. Sit-to-stand in a variety of ways; whether integrated into casegoods, supported by an H-frame, or simple freestanding tables. A center rail between two Flux worksurfaces holds suspended power units and wire baskets. Privacy panels can be added above the surface, either mounted in the center rail or to the edge of height adjustable surfaces.

Flux storage lends a hand through credenzas, towers and pantry wardrobes. A wide variety of functional accessories can clamp to the table's edge to keep clutter off the surface. Lockers offer a home for additional items away from the workstation and can create privacy between rows of benching.

Match your private offices to your open plan with a cohesive palette and aesthetic. Elevated casegoods on metal legs create a light scale, progressive look. Or keep it simple with on-the-floor casegoods. Flux's material offering includes veneer and laminate, woodgrain or solid colors. Metal finishes include Arctic Silver, Soft Nickel, Pewter, and new to the offering: Matte Black.

Flux Open Plan is available to order - March 2019. Come see the flexibility and vast extent of Flux this NeoCon in the JSI showroom, space #3-111.
