a steam bent chair

HENLEY

DESIGNED BY JOEY RUITER

Known for pushing boundaries, designer Joey Ruiter was tasked with reimagining a chair that embodies the JSI brand—a bold challenge working with a company whose roots date back to 1876. With his creativity and eye for nuanced details, we knew he was the perfect fit for this vision.

HENLEY

DESIGN OBJECTIVE

Joey visited the Chair Plant and fell in love with the craft and pride he witnessed. He observed century-old manufacturing methods still in practice and drew inspiration from evidence of time's passage and the seamless rhythm of people working in sync.

HENLEY

BACK TO BOSTON

Ruiter envisioned a contemporary Boston—one with the same cultural significance, but a fresh perspective. Lighter, more organic shapes capture the spirit and joy of JSI, while the refined details in Henley's construction celebrate the craftsmanship at the heart of JSI's identity.

AN EVOLUTION OF CRAFT

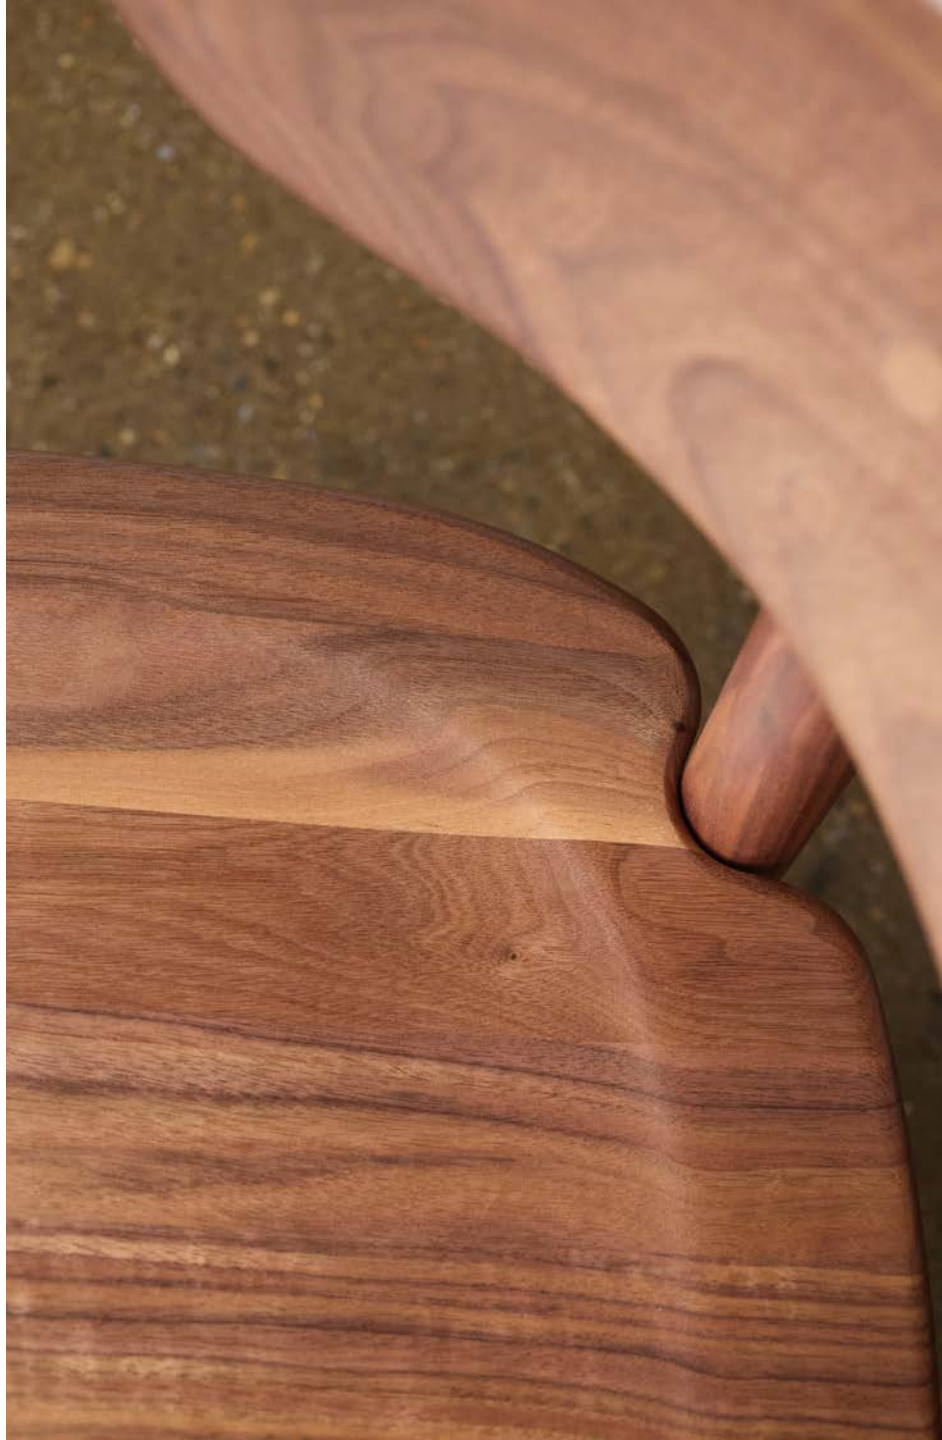

Henley's story is one of inspired craft, rooted in a culture of passion and artistry. Using JSI's original steam bending machines to shape the wood back, Henley embodies the connection between craft and culture that JSI brings to life daily through approachable, elegant, and stylish design.
